Evidence Coursework and Digitise Sketchbooks

Use online platforms to document and assess sketchbooks

If the lockdown has shown us one thing when teaching creative arts, having a grasp of the various digital means of presentation alongside our more traditional ways must be considered if we are to ensure the students have access to the best feedback and a level playing field for assessment.

This CPD will be delivered by Dan Haycocks who is an experienced visual communication lead and creative arts teacher. He will focus on exploring the platforms to use when documenting and digitising pupil's sketchbook work, including those that are supported within school internal systems and are private – reducing the need to be online due to safety and safeguarding. Examples of platforms we will explore include:

- Private Google Slides
- PDF creation from PowerPoint
- PDF creation from InDesign
- Filmed sketchbook flick-through

Dan Haycocks is a creative arts teacher of 18 years who has taught fine art, graphic communication, animation, film studies and media studies. Dan is Head of Visual Communication at Thomas Adams School in Wem.
